MINDTECK ENTERS NEW PROJECT PHASE ON ‘THE ATLAS ONLINE’ FOR CID AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Technology company has been a Founding Member of the interactive tool since 2013

Bengaluru, India – August 10, 2015: Mindteck, a global technology company listed on the Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE 517344), has begun Phase IV of its technical advisory and Big Data work on ‘The Atlas online’ for The Center for International Development (CID) at Harvard University.

‘The Atlas online’ (<http://atlas.cid.harvard.edu/>) is a powerful, interactive tool of The Atlas of Economic Complexity that provides visualizations of growth opportunities for over one hundred countries worldwide. Investors, policymakers, entrepreneurs, and any other interested users can visualize a country's total trade, track how these dynamics change over time, and explore growth opportunities.

In 2013, Mindteck became a Founding Member of ‘The Atlas online’. Since that time, the company has assisted with infrastructure upgrades, beta application testing, user interface enhancements, technology road mapping, and a ‘Build Your Story’ feature. Phase IV of Mindteck’s engagement will include continuing work on country-specific ‘Atlas’ implementations, additional localization and Natural Language Search development, and improving visualization load performance.

“Mindteck is honored to be associated with this leading research hub in support of this world-class, data-driven project which provides key insights for fueling economic growth the world over,” commented Mr. Yusuf Lanewala, Mindteck Chairman & Managing Director.

Marcela Escobari, Executive Director at CID, added, “Mindteck has helped us make significant improvements to ‘The Atlas online’ and continues to support the development of the tool. With their help, we are now working on regional versions of The Atlas which will give policymakers a more granular economic picture and allow for more actionable development policies.”
